Dr. Don Hudson

Associate Professor, Philosophy and Religion
King University
in Bristol, Tennessee

Don Michael Hudson, PhD, is an Associate Professor of Religious Studies and Chair of the Philosophy and Religion Department at King College in Bristol, TN. He is the founder of The Seattle School of Theology and Psychology, the publisher of Graffito: A Journal for Protest and Identity, and serves on the Governing Board of the King University Institute of Faith and Culture. He has studied the issue of masculinity in modern day America and has been working with men for 25 years.

Don is a nationally board certified professional counselor specializing in marriage and family.

Don is also the author of 5 books and over 50 articles and essays including The Silence of Adam and Men of Courage written with his co-author, Al Andrews.

In 1999, the Denver Post named Don as one of the leading theologians leading into the 3rd millennium. He has spent most of his life trying to answer this question: "Does it matter that we believe in God?" He thinks it does.
